A Community of Missionary
Disciples With Contemplative Hearts

On Thursday I drove to the gym for the first time in months. It was sleeting, grey and cold and after a cycle home a few weeks ago where I got drenched I decided there was nothing for it but to go in the warmth and comfort of my car. I made the decision to cycle regularly to the gym a few months ago after we had the CAFOD Creation Celebration Mass. I wanted to make a change to my lifestyle and cycling to the gym seemed like a positive change I could make. It made environmental sense but also it made sense fitness wise, why shouldn't I cycle, I am after all trying to get fit! Then I changed gym from one in Cotham to one in Bedminster so my cycle takes a bit longer now.

I used to cycle a lot as a boy, I loved going out on my bike, it gave me a sense of freedom and I could explore places further from home, my Dad cycled a lot, So it seemed normal. But cycling in Salisbury in the 1980's was very different to cycling in Bristol today. I feel that I am taking my life in my hands most of the time I go out. It can be a bit unnerving. I have got in to a bit of a rhythm on my cycle to the gym now and somehow cycling there seems to be a bit of a parable for life.

Life can be complex. There are many variables, sometimes it can seem easy and everything is going well and then it changes and there are struggles. My journey to Bedminster is mostly downhill, occasionally most of the lights are green and it is great, other times I have to stop at each light, seemingly for an eternity, and progress can seem slow. But it is still downhill, easy. The journey home is a little more challenging, nearly up hill the whole way and the closer to home I get, the steeper it becomes. Life can seem to have a number of uphill at time and never enough downhills.

No one said life would or should be easy, but for some reason I, and I am sure many of us, think it should be, for us anyway! But when we find that it is not we can become discouraged or even resentful. We might say 'Why is this happening to me?' 'I can't cope', or 'God doesn't care'. These are not constructive thoughts. St Padre Pio once said that 'Why?' Is the wrong question to ask because there is no answer to 'why'? He said we should ask, 'what'? 'What, Lord, do you want me to do in this situation'? 'How do you want me to respond'? Thinking that God doesn't care is ridiculous, look at what happened to his Son, he allowed the son he loved to the core to be crucified for you and me. If he allows us to experience hardships it does not mean that he is distant but that he is inviting us closer.

As the autumnal gloom intensifies, as the grey and cold continue and the political dark clouds hang over us as we head towards Christmas let us recognise that life is up and down, sometimes easy, sometimes hard, but our loving Father is with us every moment of the journey, inviting us to seek his will in each event. As followers of Jesus let us allow our lives to reflect the joy of the knowledge that our loving God is with us in every step of the way.

livesimply Thought for the Week: The World Day of the Poor is Sunday 17th November. In his message for this, Pope Francis reminds us that "the poor are not numbers, but people", to be assisted, accompanied, protected, defended and saved. Let us think how we can do this in our community – as well as supporting food banks, donating furniture to places like the SVP (Tel: 9624420).

Red Missio Box Holders: The 2020 calendar is now available for collection from the back of the church. Please help yourselves. If anyone would like their box emptied before the end of the year, then please hand it in before or after one of the masses so it can be put in a safe place. Please make sure it has your name on it. Many thanks for your continued generosity.

Women and Faith: Clifton Cathedral are hosting an Interfaith evening session on 27 November, at 7pm (refreshments from 6.30pm) in the Apostle Room focussing on 'Women and Faith', an exploration of the changing role of women in three religions: Judaism, Christianity and Islam.

YEAR OF PRAYER

The Diocese's Department for Adult Education share these reflections.

33RD SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME

All forms of media give us instant access to the horrors which can unfold around the world. Concerns about climate change, wars around the globe and increasing knife crime in our own country are all possible causes for us to feel anxious about the state of our world and concerned about the future. Yet our liturgy today has a very strong message which encourages us not to be afraid, but to trust in God. We are to hold firm in faith, bearing witness to the hope which our belief gives us. Christ dwells with us, we are not alone. Let us proclaim this for all who have no faith that they may see in us the trust we have in God's abundant love and care for us.
